CHANGING CONCEPTIONS IN JEWISH SOCIAL THOUGHT AND SERVICE

The programme of the Conference of Jewish Social Workers, which met in Toronto last week, was for the most part a traditional programme. It contained the usual papers and discussions on the same hackneyed subjects and problems which Jewish social workers have been discussing from the days when Adam first required the help of a social worker to get him out of the jam with Eve and the apple. The Conference programme was oblivious to the fact, as was also the presidential message, which is supposed to strike the keynote in Jewish social thought and work, that Jewish social work is now suspended under a great question mark. That a new set of conditions has arisen in Jewish life in America, by reason of the cessation of immigration. Immigration and the problems growing out of the adjustment of the immigrant, or rather, we should say, the maladjustment, usually temporary, but oftentimes more or less permanent, gave rise to the great variety of social service activities contained within and without the radius of Federations of Jewish Philanthropies. Today the United States and Canada are shut to immigration and more especially to Jewish immigrants. And the question par excellence which confronts Jewish social work and workers is: What are likely to be the effects of this cessation of immigration on their activities? If the stoppage of immigration to the United States were more or less temporary in character, speculation such as we call for would be idle. Only those who reason with their hearts are able to be optimistic in this regard. For those who reason with their heads the cessation of immigration seems permanent in character at least for another generation, during which time social forces will have an opportunity to work themselves out consequentially. And it is for this reason that speculation on this subject is timely and pertinent. Wise people always plan for the future.

In the past many reasons were given for the existence of special Jewish social service activities. The traditional reason was the promise of the Jews to Peter Stuyvesant, the Dutch governor of New York, never to have their poor become a burden on the general community. Another argument was the position that the Jews need special institutions for sectarian religious reasons, so that Jewish influence and be in a Jewish atmosphere.

Still another reason arose out of the necessity of having social workers who spoke Yiddish and understood the psychology of the East European Ghetto Jew to contact with the Jewish immigrant, poor and needy.

To our way of thinking, however, the most potent reason for specific Jewish social service was the prevention of the formation of slum conditions among our people, who were not habitual slum-dwellers in the old world and who are not therefore the inheritors of pauperizing proclivities, but who, owing to the suddenness of the transformation of their existences by reason of emigration, might easily become subject to those forces of deterioration which lead to the formation of Jewish slums.

All the above-mentioned reasons for specific Jewish philanthropy are, however, the outcome of immigration. A comparison of the number and variety of Jewish philanthropic institutions which existed in America before 1881, when the tremendous flood of East European Jewish immigration commenced with the number, variety and amount of money spent for Jewish philanthropy since 1881, is prima facie evidence that immigration and immigration alone, is responsible for our social service problems. It is also worthy of mention that Jewish social service concerned itself largely, if not wholly, with Americanization and the bread and butter problems of the under-privileged and maladjusted Jew. It sought to take this sort of Jew under its protecting wing. It took him by the hand, led him to where opportunities for self-support were to be found, and nursed him along until he became self-supporting and adjusted, and then let him go to shift for himself. The theory was correct that, given the opportunities, the immigrant Jew could be relied on to make the most of them. And so he did. Many an immigrant who received his first "lift" from "the charities" became, in a few years, well to do and not infrequently the former recipient was transformed into a contributor. Under free immigration, Jewish social service "became fruitful and multiplied." But now a monkey wrench has been thrown into the machinery. Several new things are happening. Firstly, immigration is to be no more. The raw material which formed the grist for the social workers' mill is disappearing. Given no immigrants, we hazard the assertion that in twenty-five years there will be no Jewish poor in America. The Jew with his genius, especially for economic adaptation, will make the most of these opportunities to rise in the financial ladder. This will mean that the home market for Jewish philanthropy will shrink in the next generation and many rich charity Jews, whose tion to the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, will have to look for foreign fields for their charitable investments.

There is another factor, too, that is of no small consequence, and that is the growing tendency of the State—a tendency which we should encourage—gradually to take over, one by one, the charitable efforts which are started and maintained by private voluntary support. The mistake practically almost all private social service agencies make is to continue to conduct the work they are doing long after the need and practicability of their experiment has been amply demonstrated, instead of spending their time and money to persuade the State to make their work a function of the State's public services.

And last, but not least, the cessation of immigration means the gradual disappearance of the Ghetto values which the East European Jew brought over with him to America, but which will not survive transplantation to American soil. As an instance of what we refer to, we mention the case of Yiddish. Regrettable as it may be, Yiddish, which one million Jews in New York alone recorded as their mother tongue in the U.S.A. census of 1920, will, if all indications are correct, not be recorded as the mother tongue by their children and children's children in the 1940 census. Orthodox Judaism will lose much, if not all, of its Ghetto characteristics. The different "isms" and "ists," whose philosophy is that of secular Diaspora nationalism, have only a precarious existence to look forward to without immigration. The many mutual aid and benefit orders and lodges which are immigrant in character have no future with the source of their supply cut off. In the economic life of the proletarian Jew it is already a fact that Italians, Greeks and now also American girls are taking the place of thousands of Jews in the garment and needle trades. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers and the International Garment Workers' Unions already have a large non-Jewish membership, which is surprising when one recalls that only yesterday, as it were, these Unions were not only the most powerful in America, but exclusively Jewish. "There was not a goy to be found for a refuoh." In a word, the Jewish social worker, if he is honest with himself and willing to draw the compelling inferences from the existing tendencies, must acknowledge, as he looks ahead into the near future, that social conditions are working him out of a job. In this prognosis of the future we are not merely guessing or prophesying. Many of the predictions we are making are based on the facts that are already visibly at work in Jewish communal life. And none are so blind as those who will not look and see.

Jewish Social Service Workers Here

Three hundred and fifty Jewish social service workers from Canada and the United States assembled in Toronto from Monday until Thursday of last week, attended the opening meeting of their National Conference in Holy Blossom Synagogue, where Rabbi B. R. Brickner addressed them.

Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner said the primary object of Jewish social service was to prevent slum conditions amongst people unused to slums, and for this reason he regretted the ban placed upon Jewish immigration by the United States.

Changes of great moment affecting the community life of the Jew in the United States and Canada as a direct result of the abatement of immigration were prophesied.

Rabbi Brickner stated that the lessening of immigration is permanent and will result in eliminating the problem of the immigrant Jew. In the next quarter century, if the Jew enjoys the same economic privileges as he does to-day on this continent, there will be no poor Jews and the ghettos will go and with them the Yiddish language. Jewish life will cease to be secular and will be different from other races only in religious culture. The result will be to reduce the the work of the Jewish social service to a minimum, so that Jews will have to find a market for their philanthropy.

In the absence of Maurice B. Hexter, of Boston Mass., president of the Conference, who is now in Europe, Maurice D. Waldman, executive director of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities, read Mr. Hexter's annual message.

A business meeting of the executive of the conference was held at the King Edward Hotel in the afternoon, when the annual report was received and sent on to the first session of the Conference.

The local committee in charge of the arrangements for the Conference was composed of Mrs. B. R. Brickner, Mrs. D. Dunkelman, Mrs. J. J. Allen, Mrs. I. Elsman, Mrs. J. Feld, Miss E. Levy, Mrs. B. Rez, Mrs. A. J. Wilensky, Mrs. I. H. Segal, Mrs. H. Claver, Miss Adelaide Cohen, Mrs. D. Rocksmaker, Mrs. M. Levy and Mrs. J. Singer.

Well-known Men Address Same Session

Palestine is a melting pot, Dr. I. M. Rubinow, of Philadelphia, told the delegates, and out of this melting pot is being developed a new type of Jew.

Dr. Rubinow sketched social conditions in the Holy Land. "Around a restaurant table," he stated, one can hear people speaking Russian, German, English, French, Hebrew, Yiddish, Arabic, Turkish, Greek and even Latin. They come from the old and newly created countries of Central Europe, from the African coast to the Mediterranean, from Syria, Mesopotamia, India and China, from North and South America and Australia, all Jews of every imaginable type who are undergoing a process of re-assimilation."

Approximately twenty-five million dollars was spent by Jews in America during 1923 for philanthropic endeavours, Samuel A. Goldsmith, of the bureau of Jewish social research, said in his address. In citing these figures, Mr. Goldsmith pointed out the need of a systematized method of raising funds in America for non-local work. He suggested that local federations carry on special campaigns at special times. He also suggested the planning of a total budget and the appointment of the bureau as an agency to approve or veto all national appeals based on the necessity or non necessity of the work.

"What strikes us as particularly significant," said Dr. Ludwig B. Bernstein, discussing radical differences in social service work here and in Europe among Jewish organizations, "is the affectionate care showered by the Berlin Jewish community on the genteel poor, by which are meant poor families of better social strata, for whose benefit the annual proceeds of numerous charitable bequests are available."

"Berlin's provision for the health care of its Jewish people is most commendable," he went on. "There is a very generous endowment for the care of tubercular patients in their own homes. A marked concern for the care and welfare of students is maintained both in Berlin and Vienna."

The opinion that the American immigration bill would have a far-reaching effect on Jews was made by Dr. Lee Frankel. In his opening speech Dr. Frankel said that medical welfare was of prime importance to the growing generation. He added that health was not Jewish nor sectarian and that in but isolated cases was there need of a special Jewish institution. He was of the opinion that the recently passed American immigration bill would cause serious changes in the social and welfare problems of the Jewish people. It was his belief that immigration restriction was a permanent policy of the American government and that those Jews who now talk only Yiddish would in the next ten years become Americanized and would thus cease being a problem for social agencies.

Dr. Frankel said that the trend of health work is to place responsibility squarely on the community and that the chief function of Jews as citizens should be to see to it that the work is undertaken and done. He advised communities to have surveys made of their communal problems before initiating a health programme.

"There are some people who still believe in the efficacy of the good old-fashioned slipper as the solution of juvenile delinquency problems," said Jess Perlman, executive director of the committee on field activities of the Jewish board of guardians of New York, speaking at the child welfare conference of the National Convention of Jewish Social Service held at the King Edward recently.

Failures to check juvenile delinquency among Jews was in large measure due to lack of co-operation on the part of the synagogue and to a seeming lack of interest on the part of the rabbi.

Economic conditions in many families, and indifference to things Yiddish, were having a careful effect on the rising generation, he continued.

Jewish settlements in U.S.A. came in for some hot criticism, particularly concerning stock methods of "Americanization." In some places, he declared, the work consists chiefly in teaching those in the community the words of a language and the waving of a flag. "Such a system," said Mr. Perlman, "is without friendship, without love, and therefore without power to bridge the unfortunate abyss."

Closing Session

Soviet Russia does not recognize Jews as such; only those who speak Yiddish are members of the "Jewish Group," and this attitude, together with the endeavours of the present-day rulers of Russia to abolish all vestiges of the bourgeois was responsible for many radical changes in the life of the Russian Jewish people. This was the essence of a paper given by Dr. Harry S. Linfeld, of the Bureau of Jewish Social Research, at the closing session of the National Conference of Jewish Social Service in the King Edward Hotel.

The day was given over to the consideration of community welfare activites in European countries. In the discussion which followed the paper, Dr. Boris Bogen pointed out that if the Russian Jews are deprived of the freedom to impart religious knowledge freedom to impart religious knowledge to their children, this prohibition was the common fate of all Russians and that for the first time in history, the Russian Jews were not suffering from discrimination. Dr. C. D. Spivak emphasized that, whatever the policy of the Soviet Government might be, it would change before long and become more liberal towards all religions, the Jewish faith included. Dr. Frank Rosenblatt, New York, agreed, however, that there was no discrimination against the Jews in Russia.

The establishment of a Jewish Communal Training School for Social Workers was recommended by a special committee. A tentative budget calling for an expenditure of $42,750 a year was adopted, but it was decided that the school should not be opened until sufficient money was available for at least three years' maintenance.

Liberal Givings

At a session of the executives of the Federation of Jewish Charities, held in conjunction with the conference, Dr. Samuel A. Goldsmith, Director of the Bureau of Jewish Social Research, announced that approximately $25,000,000 was contributed by the Jews of Canada and the United States during States during 1923 for philanthropic purposes in America and European centres.

The election of officers resulted as follows: president, Dr. Ludwig B. Bernstein, Pittsburg; vice-presidents, Jacob Billikopf Philadelphia; Dr. Boris Bogen, Los Angeles, and Arthur C. Heyman, Baltimore; treasurer Louis M. Cahn, Chicago; secretary, Samuel A. Goldsmith, New York; assistant secretaries, Miss Laura Guttenacher, Baltimore; Jess Perlman, New York and Samuel Goldhammer Cleveland. Executive committee (three years), Dr. I. M. Rubinow, Philadelphia; Cecil Weiner Buffalo, and Morris D. Waldman, Detroit.

Dr. Frankel Predicts Men Will Live One Hundred and Twenty Years

Dr. Lee K. Frankel, of New York, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and director of the medical work of that institution, at a complimentary dinner tendered him at the Primrose Club by the Jewish professional and business men of Toronto, reviewed the progress of medical science in his address on "The Romance of Medicine." He paid a glowing tribute to the men who have worked in the laboratories to alleviate the suffering of mankind since the time of Pasteur and Koch, the founders of the science of bacteriology.

The speaker had prophesied the recent outbreaks of smallpox which occurred in Detroit and Windsor. These outbreaks he attributed to the fact that many are beginning to disregard the necessity of vaccination. In one section of Detroit where there were 95 per cent. of foreigners who had been vaccinated before entering the country no cases of smallpox occurred.

As a result of the Schick test, by which it is possible to eliminate those susceptible to diphtheria, Dr. Frankel predicted that within ten years diphtheria will not be known in Canada or the United States.

He outlined the splendid work being done in the field of tuberculosis saying that the day will soon come when medicine will assign this disease which is ravaging this country to the category of diseases which are recognized as having no right to exist in well-regulated communities.

Pneumonia, the dreaded disease of old age, is also coming within the grip of the doctor. Recently a serum containing the precipitated antibody from the serum of a horse inoculated with the germ has been prepared. This serum has already done much to prevent deaths from pneumonia, stated the speaker.

"I believe," concluded Dr. Frankel, "that from the wonderful discoveries that research in scientific medicine will bring, the day will come when we will live not three score and ten years, but 120 years."

Those present included: Dr. B. R. Brickner, Edmund Scheuer, L. Frankel, Egmont Frankel, Fred Singer, A. Singer, Dr. M. Schwarz, Dr. M. A. Pollock, Dr. B. Cohen; Solomon Lowenstein, New York; Dr. B. D. Bogen, New York; Dr. I. M. Rubinow, Philadelphia, Dr. M. Spivak, New York; B. Goldstein; Dr. M. Weiss, Cincinnatti; Dr. M. Kates, D. Lavine, A. Cohen; D. Waldman, Detroit; S. Kronick, J. Creed; I. Hirschfeld, New York; Dr. I. Siegel, Dr. W. Winkler, H. Lehrer, Dr. H. Breslin; L. Brenner, New York; A. Lewis and S. Stein.

ROUMANIAN GOVERNMENT SETTLES QUESTION OF JEWISH REFUGEES

Will Ask Permission of Soviet Government for Mass Return

Bucharest (J.T.A.).—The question of the Russian Jewish refugees, who were stranded in Roumania, anticipating the possibility of proceeding to America, was settled to-day as the result of the negotations between the Roumanian Government and Mr. Lucien Wolf, the secretary of the Joint Foreign Committee of England and representative of the Ica, the Jewish Colonization Association.

According to the agreement reached, the Roumanian government will commence diplomatic negotations with the Soviet government to obtain the latter's permission for a mass return of those refugees who are unable to proceed to America. Those refugees, however, who have possibilities of proceeding to their destinations will be permitted to stay in Roumania until able to go.

NO MORE VIOLENCE BUT PARLIAMENTARY CAMPAIGN, DECIDED UPON BY ROUMANIAN FASCISTI

Vienna (J.T.A.).—No more violence against the Jews of Roumania will be encouraged by the Fascisti students of Roumania, according to reports appearing in the press of Jassy.

The reports state that the Fascisti students are now considering a change in their programme and contemplate abandoning acts of violence in favour of a sharp parliamentary campaign for the purpose of "dejudaizing Roumania."

SOVIET AUTHORITIES DO NOT PERMIT JEWISH EMIGRATION

Riga (J.T.A.). Many Jews are being brought back to Minsk from the Russian-Polish and Russian-Latvian frontiers by the Soviet authorities, according to information received here from that city, on the charge of attempting to smuggle themselves across the frontiers illegally.

The reasons for these attempts to cross the border illegally are the very difficult economic position in which the Jewish masses of Soviet Russia find themselves at present, and the difficulty of obtaining legal permission from the Soviet authorities to leave the country.

JEWS OF SOUTH AFRICA PLAY IMPORTANT PART IN POLITICAL CAMPAIGN

Johannesburg (J.T.A.).—The approaching elections to the new parliament in South Africa have demonstrated the strength and importance to which the Jewish community of that region has of late grown. Many Jewish citizens are among the candidates appearing on the tickets of the South African and Labour Parties.

The Jewish community as a whole is taking a great interest in the election which is to decide the fate of General Smuts' government. No Jewish candidates are on the tickets of the Nationalist and Dutch Parties. The Jews are avoiding the introduction into the campaign of matters specifically Jewish, and are voting only in accordance with their political convictions.

JEWISH ACADEMIC EXPEDITION TO PALESTINE

Warsaw (J.T.A.).—A Jewish scientific expedition will shortly leave here for Palestine. The expeidition is being organized by the executive of the Jewish academic associations.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancour
That for what it cost me to be free
I might have had an anchor."

Small town journalism established a new record for itself when the Shreveport Recorder, of Shreveport, Texas, dedicated one whole issue to the fourteen Jewish graduates of the local high school. The girls and boys had their pictures in the paper, under each such salutations as we quote here verbatim: "Max is a very nice boy and liked by all his friends. "Ben Joe is a very nice boy and is liked by all who know him. August is one of the smartest boys in high school. Sam is a smart boy. Coleman is a very nice boy and is liked by his many friends," etc. Each of the girls was "one of the smartest girls" in the school. These very nice boys and smartest girls really do look like a decent bunch of normal young citizens, spirited enough to rebel against having the goo laid on with such a crude trowel. Perhaps they did turn, for Shreveport is down south where they go out and get their man.

"Another judicial outrage is reported, this time from Ottawa. There a poor, hard-working bootlegger has been hauled into court by a hard-hearted government to show cause why he should not pay an income tax upon his profits. Fortunately, this man is no spineless person, but one sensitive to his duty and his obligation to his profession. So he has properly set up the unanswerable defense that the state is without jurisdiction inasmuch as it cannot tax an illegal business. Plainly if it does so it becomes a partner in wrongdoing, sharing the profits of an illegitimate occupation. . . . . .

Just now the bootlegging industry is building up a new social aristocracy with such speed that we shall soon find ourselves no longer bowing down to the lords and ladies of oil, but admiring the yachts and palaces of those who grow rich yet are tax-free and happy. We confess, though, that if we were that Ottawa judge we should find it advisable to start at once for the North Pole or Central Africa. He reserved judgment. So should we indefinitely. For if he sustains the bootlegger he deprives his government of huge revenues and helps him to immunity, and if he condemns the bootlegger to pay he legitimizes an occupation the king's law officers are sworn, we suppose, to root out. Who will care hereafter if he is asked that trying old catch question: "Have you ceased beating your wife?"—The Nation.

Just as the calendar, if not the weather, threatens us with a summer season and English-Jewish columnists, who have laid Henry Ford away for a time, are putting in new typewriter ribbons for an attack on inn-keepers, there comes a report from Rabbi Joseph Jasin, of Temple Israel, Miami, Florida, that Miami hotels are not practicing discrimination against Jews. The rabbi writes north that after a personal investigation he can assure Jews that the hotels are free from prejudice against them. This is very discouraging to the writers who must have their summer anti-Semitism, and to others who occasionally discuss what they call situations between games—on summer verandahs. However, all the returns are not in yet by any means and perhaps things will brighten up a little when we have news from the northern hotels to send south.

Business Is Good

To-day business is good—every day shows definite sustained progress.

Savings Bank Deposits have increased since December by $12,552,769 or over 10%. Freight Car Loadings have increased by 9.7% over a year ago.

The movement of grain represented by cash receipts is 23.6% greater than a year ago. The balance of trade (that is, excess of exports over imports) is 15.7% greater than a like period of last year.

The Canadian Bank Clearings for the first four months of 1924 are 5.6% greater than during the same period of 1923.

Hundreds of individual business houses have increased sales. In our own business, not an isolated case by any means, the months of January, February, March, April and May show substantial increases over the same period a year ago or any of the past three years.

Take a trip down the Main Street of any leading city. People are not staying at home. They are buying from leaders who by their enterprise and thought have made it worth while for them to buy.

True, business is not what it might be in some quarters. That is caused chiefly by lack of effort to make business better. From this same cause unemployment has developed in industries that should show improvement.

Every business house must recover that daring spirit of enterprise that sort of sane optimism—not only in trade, but in civic and national affairs.

Fortune will not turn the wheel of better business for us. It is the task of every business executive to turn that wheel for himself and his business by harder work and by more aggressive enterprise. KEEP BUSINESS IMPROVING!

BETH JACOB DOVES WIN TWO

By winning the first two games in the Church League, the Beth Jacob Doves, representing the Beth Jacob Anshe Sfodom Synagogue, are leading the western section of the league. The opening game brought together the Doves and the Zion Voyagers, whom the Doves defeated last year for the city championship. The score was 10-9. Sutton, the Doves hurler, struck out 13 men and allowed only 6 hits. Lawson, the Zion pitcher, was nicked for 14 hits and struck out 3. Silver caught a good game for the winners.

The Doves scored their runs in the first when Michnick doubled and scored on Sutter's two-base hit; in the 5th on successive hits by Silver, Schure and Goldstein and Berk's sacrifice, making a total of 4; in the sixth, on a walk to Michnick, Sutton's hit, Silver's walk and Schure's double scored 3 more; in the seventh Michnick put the game on ice by knocking a home run with Brick on second. Schure scored the final run on a walk.

FLINT SIX TO BE "MADE IN CANADA"

Durant Motors Adds Another Car To Their String

Mr. R. H. Mulch, General Manager of the Durant Motors of Canada, Limited, on his return to-day from Flint, Michigan, made the interesting announcement that he is perfecting arrangements for the commencement of construction of the Flint Six in a few weeks at the Leaside plant of Durant Motors of Canada, Limited.

Mr. Mulch reports that the plant of the Flint Motor Company is turning out over 100 cars a day, for seven days a week, in an endeavour to catch up with orders. This is a pronounced contrast to the general situation in the automobile industry. It gives an indication of the buying tendencies of the motor car purchasers, who, apparently, appreciate the value of new engineering features introduced in certain new cars which have recently been put on the market by established manufacturers who are not hampered by large material commitments and obsolete equipment.

HAKENKREUZLER IN COLOGNE BECOME ACTIVE

Cologne (J.T.A.)—The festival of the Jewish Students Association, Bar Kochba" was disturbed yesterday by a detachment of the Hakenkreuzler, who forced their way into the meeting place singing anti Semitic songs.

In the evening, forty of the "Knueppel burschen," youths who carry with them rubber-tipped whips for use on the Jews, attacked eight members of the Bar Kochba, wounding three seriously. The police intervened and arrested many of the anti-Semites. Two of them claimed that they had been attacked by the Jews.

EDITORIAL

The main problem of Jewish life in the next twenty-five years will not be one of palliative charity and social service but the problems will be those of the conservation and diffusion of Judaism and the Jewish people under the new conditions of freedom and opulence. In other words, it will be the normal and constructive phases of Jewish life and culture on which we will be called upon to concentrate all our efforts. There are many who are exceedingly sceptical about the probability of Jewish mass survival under the conditions of democracy and wealth. Such a combination of circumstances and such a challenge is new in Jewish history. There is no exact parallel to enable us to judge by history. But irrespective of whether the Jew can survive or not, one thing is certain, the effort is worth the making. And it is here that the Jewish social worker finds for himself a new job. His will be the task of becoming a planner, thinker and worker of the constructive bases on which Jewish life in American can be built. This task calls for a new type of Jewish social worker who will be different from that of his present type. Only one who is actuated by a powerful feeling of Jewish self consciousness, born of Jewish knowledge and a sense of Judaism's worthwhileness and who is deeply stirred by convictions of Jewish survival, will be qualified to undertake this work. The Jewish social worker will have to become an active factotum in all movements striving for Jewish survival—movements from which he has heretofore held himself aloof.

The truth of our contention is again demonstrated by the prominent place which Jewish education and the Jewish educator is winning for himself, not without battle, in the conference of Jewish social service.

Nothing short of a revolutionary change in Jewish social work and thought is imminent. This is due to the revolutionary change taking place in Jewish communal life. It behooves the Jewish social worker to turn his face in a new direction. It is incumbent upon him to re-evaluate and reset all his present activities and all the existent institutions in terms of these changes. We trust that at the next conference this task of reformulating Jewish social service will be undertaken. It requires courage but it must be done.

Barnett R. Brickner

Warsaw (J.T.A.).—The Jewish community of Warsaw is being flooded with propaganda literature and activities by all the Jewish parties contending in the Kehillah elections.

The elections are to take place on June 15, in the meantime meetings are being held daily by all the parties. Some of the meetings have been very stormy particularly those arranged by the Zionists. It has become the practice of the various parties to go to the meetings of their rivals to try to break them up. The Socialist Bundists are particularly active in this direction.

The Zionist ticket for the Warsaw Kehillah contains the names of Dr. Buchowsky, Dr. Meir Kluzel, Dr. Gershon Lewine and Mr. Leon Lewite.

The ticket of the Volkist Party contains the names of Mr. Noah Prilutzki, the leader of the party and member of the Polish Sejm and Chaim Kesner.

The Bundist ticket contains Ehrlich and Portnoy the Poale Zion Zrubovel and Rafalkes.

ANTI-KLAN PLANK TO BE PROPOSED AT REPUBLICAN CONVENTION BY JEWISH COMMITTEE

Cleveland (J.T.A.). A committee was formed here yesterday for the purpose of obtaining the incorporation into the Republican platform of an anti-Klan plank. The Committee was formed at the initiative of the American Jewish Congress and consists of Samuel Koenig, Chairman of the Republican Committee of New York County; Assistant United States Attorney Stone, of Boston; Louis Topkis, of Wilmington; S. Rocker and Rabbis A. H. Silver and S. Goldman, of Cleveland; Nathan Kaplan and J. Liebner, of Chicago; Jacob Ginsburg, publisher of the Philadelphia Jewish World and Dr. Stephen S. Wise.

It is reported in convention circles that a resolution signed by a number of prominent persons throughout the country will be presented to-day to the Resolutions Committee of the Republican Convention, reading as follows:

"This party pledges itself and candidates to stand inflexibly for government by due process of law and against all groups, open or secret, which attempt to take the law into their own hands. If its candidates are elected, this party gives assurance that no acts of theirs will render aid or comfort to any organization based on prejudice or discrimination against any citizen for reasons of race, colour or creed."

A similar resolution will be presented to the Democratic Convention in New York, according to the reports.

$60,000 SENT FOR RELIEF WORK IN RUSSIA

Moscow (J.T.A.).—Mr. Koldewsky, Provisional Director in Russia of the Joint Distribution Committee has received the sum of $60,000 for relief work in Russia. This sum will be distributed among the orphanages and homes for the aged and will be used for relief work among the intellectuals and other groups.

The J. D. C. is opening in the Crimea, a summer sanatorium with accommodations for twenty Jewish children. Children will be sent to the sanatorium from Leningrad, Moscow, Kiev, Odessa and other large towns. It is expected that during the summer it will be possible to have several hundred children at the sanatorium.

The J.D.C. is now working in Moscow with a largely reduced staff. Its work in Russia will be terminated completely in July, but a skeleton organization will be maintained for use in connection with the colonization work in the Crimea, which, it is hoped, will be started by the end of the summer.

NAME OF PALESTINIAN GOVERNMENT QUESTIONED BY ARAB PAPER

Jerusalem (J.T.A.). The question of the proper name of the Palestinian government was raised by the Arab paper, "Meraat El Sherk" in connection with the issuance of diplomas to a number of Jewish graduates of the elementary school.

In the diplomas given these graduates the term "Government of Eretz Yisroel" was used, while in the English and Arab diplomas, the words "Government of Palestine" were used. The paper protests against the use of the former term, claiming that it would imply that Palestine is a Jewish country and that its government is Jewish.
